ANNOUNCEMENT.

Terre Haute has grown beyond that point where a city directory is needed only at various times to suit the whims of publishers. A city directory two years old is obsolete. So many changes are made in business affairs in the course of that time that a directory of two years' standing is almost worthless.

The Moore & Langen Printing Company believes that the citizens of Terre Haute need a new city directory every year, and that the business men, manufacturers and citizens generally, will give such an enterprise their cordial support.

This is the first directory of Terre Haute, wherein the Moore & Langen Printing Company has officiated as proprietors and publishers.

No pains have been spared to make it the most accurate directory of Terre Haute that has ever been published.

We extend our thanks to all citizens for the uniform courtesy shown our canvassers and others in gathering the information necessary for an accurate compilation.

The Moore & Langen directory for next year will be as complete as the present one. Very respectfully,

MOORE & LANGEN PRINTING COMPANY.

HISTORICAL.

(This brief compilation was made from county records and early historical works.)

Vigo County.

At the time Vigo county was taken from Sullivan county it extended about twenty miles north of Fort Harrison to what was known as the Indian Boundary Line. The new county of Vigo was formed in 1818, and was divided into four townships—Harrison, Wabash and Honey Creek townships east of the river, and Independence township west of the river. The division into townships as now formed was made in 1820.

The first court held in Vigo county convened in the log cabin residence of Truman Blackman, near Fort Harrison. Lucius H. Scott was the first sheriff, and Truman Blackman his deputy.

The first postmaster in Vigo county was Curtis Gilbert, who was commissioned December 1, 1817, and received mail at Fort Harrison.

The first school house in the county was a log cabin built by the settlers near Fort Harrison, and was opened by Lucius H. Scott.

Terre Haute.

Terre Haute was an expression applied by the early French trappers and fur traders along the Ouabache (Wabash) river to high banks, and did not signify any particular point. At several of these high places the Wea Indians (a branch of the Miamis) had small villages. One of these villages was located on the high ground near where the water works is now located, and, in after years was called "Orchard Town," and "Old Indian Orchard," because of a number of old apple trees found growing there, which had been planted by some of the French fur traders who lived with the Weas. The Indian name of the village was Ouiatemo (We-aw-te-no).

Old historians claim that when General Harrison left Post Vincennes on his memorable march to the mouth of Tippecanoe river in 1811 he expected to establish a fort at "Orchard Town," but upon arriving there, changed his plans and camped a few miles further up the river, where he established Fort Harrison.

Among the early settlers near Fort Harrison was Abram Markle, who associated with himself several gentlemen from Vincennes and Louisville, and formed The Terre Haute Land Company. This company owned fourteen tracts of land along the Wabash river, and they decided to locate a town on their possessions, near Fort Harrison. The company was favorably impressed with a site now known as "Old Terre Haute." They sent out William Hogatt, an experienced civil engineer, to make location for them. He rejected the site now known as "Old Terre Haute" because of the close proximity to the river bottom, both north and south, on the same side of the river, and gave Terre Haute its present location. The land on which he located the town was entered by Joseph Kitchell, and was soon afterwards bought by the Terre Haute Land Company. The town was laid out in 1816, the original plat comprised thirty-five blocks, bounded by Water street on the west; Eagle, on the north; Fifth, on the east; Swan, on the south. Third street was at that time called Market street, and was a continuation of the "Old State Road," from Vincennes to Lafayette.

The first sale of lots took place October 31, 1816. In 1817 there were but two cabins in the town—one built by Dr. Charles Modesitt, on Water street diagonally across the street from where the jail now stands, and the other by William Mars, a short distance below. The selection of this part of the town for a residence by Dr. Modesitt can be explained when it is known that he soon afterwards established a ferry at the foot of Ohio street.

Another sale of lots took place in 1819, wherein the county seems to have been interested, as commissioners' record No. 1, now on file in the auditor's office, shows that the county commissioners allowed a bill of $3.25 to John Earle "for liquors furnished the county at the sale of lots in the town of Terre Haute."

The growth of Terre Haute has been steady and healthful, and now has a population of nearly 40,000. (The official census of 1900 places the city's population at 36,673.)

It ranks very high as a manufacturing city. Its healthful and beautiful situation, its inexhaustible coal fields and central transportation facilities, its beautiful shaded streets and avenues, make it a desirable place for business and homes.

CITY LIMITS.

Beginning at the west end of Hulman street and following the course of the river to Locust; thence east to Water; north on Water street to Fourth avenue; east on Fourth avenue to First street; north on First street to Maple avenue; east on Maple avenue to Thirteenth street; south on Thirteenth to Buckeye; east on Buckeye to Sixteenth; south on Sixteenth street to Sixth avenue; east on Sixth avenue to Nineteenth street; south on Nineteenth to Locust; east on Locust to Twenty-fifth; south on Twenty-fifth street to Wabash avenue; west on Wabash avenue to Twentieth street; south on Twentieth street to College avenue; west on College avenue to Nineteenth street; south on Nineteenth to Hulman; west on Hulman to Thirteenth; south on Thirteenth to Voorhees; west on Voorhees to Seventh; north on Seventh to Hulman; west on Hulman to Wabash river.

HOUSE NUMBERING.

The numbering of houses in this city is not uniform, and probably never will be, for the reason that the owners of houses object to changing numbers that have by long usage become a sort of trade-mark. Quite a number of persons absolutely refused to allow our canvassers to use the new numbers.

The numbering of houses on streets and avenues running east and west commences at the Wabash river, where such streets extend to the river; Lafayette avenue, although commencing on North Third street has 300 for its first house number.

With the exception of Water street, all streets running north and south have numerical names; as, First, Second, etc.; Twenty-fifth street being the extreme east.

Numbers are supposed to be 18 feet apart, and the odd numbers are placed on the right hand side of the street as we travel from number 1. Thus, on all streets running east from the river the odd numbers are on the right-hand, or south side; on streets running north from Wabash avenue they are on the east side, while those running south from Wabash avenue have the odd numbers on the west side.

After the zero point, each square is supposed to commence with even hundreds.

THE WORLD'S HIGHEST HONORS

THE Baldwin PIANO

PRIX
PARIS 1900

GRAND AND UPRIGHT PIANOS

Of the Highest Artistic Excellence.

The Highest Award ever received by American Pianofortes in the Great World Contests of the International Expositions.

The American Exhibits in Art and in the varied branches of Industry have, through the best organized effort ever made by the United States, fully represented our great country, and have ranked second to France in the number of awards for merit.

In variety, interest and value as an object lesson, as well as in beauty, quality and artistic value, the Baldwin Exhibits at Paris, 1900, have been the best ever made by single exhibitors in these great series of Paris Exhibitions, of which that of 1900 has been the greatest.

Examples taken from the Baldwin Exhibits have been reproduced in the Art Magazines of London, Paris, Madrid, Dresden, etc.

An Introduction

To the people of Terre Haute and vicinity can be secured by placing your advertising in the

Terre Haute Express . .

A newspaper recognized by advertisers as having an extensive circulation supported by a clientele of intelligent readers.

The clean cut methods of the Express, the absence of sensationalism and its concise, comprehensive manner of presenting the latest foreign and local news commend it to the home, and appealing as it does to the most prosperous classes of men and women—the most desirable customers for any good thing—those who have money to spend—it more than satisfies advertisers, who demonstrate their appreciation of its results by renewed contracts. Established in 1823. The pioneer paper of the Wabash Valley. The 78th year of its publication finds it fully apace with the times—improvement each succeeding month is the motto of an aggressive management. An interesting paper, eager readers and years of existence, lends prestige to the Express and credits its value as an advertising medium.

We have a large field all to ourselves

If you want to reach the Germans of Terre Haute and vicinity, you must use the "Daily" or "Weekly" Journal.

The Daily Journal,

newsy, reliable and ably edited, is the most widely circulated German newspaper in Indiana, and is of inestimable value to advertisers.

The Weekly Journal

circulates all over Indiana and Eastern Illinois, and consequently offers splendid opportunities to shrewd advertisers.
Farmers, especially the Germans, are thrifty and have confidence in a publication that brings them back to the old Fatherland.

OUR MOTTO IS:
We aim to satisfy READERS and ADVERTISERS and we do it.

An Introduction

To the people of Terre Haute and vicinity can be secured by placing your advertising in the

Terre Haute Express . .

A newspaper recognized by advertisers as having an extensive circulation supported by a clientele of intelligent readers.

The clean cut methods of the Express, the absence of sensationalism and its concise, comprehensive manner of presenting the latest foreign and local news commend it to the home, and appealing as it does to the most prosperous classes of men and women—the most desirable customers for any good thing—those who have money to spend—it more than satisfies advertisers, who demonstrate their appreciation of its results by renewed contracts. Established in 1823. The pioneer paper of the Wabash Valley. The 78th year of its publication finds it fully apace with the times—improvement each succeeding month is the motto of an aggressive management. An interesting paper, eager readers and years of existence, lends prestige to the Express and credits its value as an advertising medium.

We have a large field all to ourselves

If you want to reach the Germans of Terre Haute and vicinity, you must use the "Daily" or "Weekly" Journal

The Daily Journal,

newsy, reliable and ably edited, is the most widely circulated German newspaper in Indiana, and is of inestimable value to advertisers.

The Weekly Journal

circulates all over Indiana and Eastern Illinois, and consequently offers splendid opportunities to shrewd advertisers.

Farmers, especially the Germans, are thrifty and have confidence in a publication that brings them back to the old Fatherland.

OUR MOTTO IS:

We aim to satisfy READERS and ADVERTISERS and we do it.

Journal Publishing Company,
